Lions barbecue Sunday afternoon

Carmel Valley Lions Club has planned a barbecue for Sunday, June 27, at the Filter Plant. This social gathering is open to the public and will be held from 1-5 p.m. This is the second annual barbecue and the dinner which will feature steak and salad will run $3.00 for adults.

Vandalism disappears

Things okay at Community Pool

Mike Largent reports happily from the Community Pool that there have been no more incidents of vandalism since last week's series of broken bottles and mud. Let us hope that those who were causing the havoc in the swimming pool have satisfied their impulses and the pool will continue to serve the many children in the Valley without further problems.

Woman proposes changing POA setup here

Doreen Bussinger of 89 Boronda Rd. proposed in a letter to the Outlook:

--Dissolving all present property owners associations.

--Dividing the Valley into a number of "districts."

--Having each district elect its own property owners association.

--Electing a delegate from each association to a Carmel Valley Property Owners Board, which would have Valleywide jurisdiction.

Any issue involving three or more districts would go before the board, as would an issue for which a hearing is requested by a district.

Mrs. Bussinger said her plan was conceived after Col. St. E. P. (Step) Tyner (USA, ret.) had wondered in public print whether any plan was better for unity than strengthening the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association (CVPOA). He is CVPOA president.

"This is as far as my plan goes," she added, "but hopefully maybe it will be a beginning thread for a much-needed spool."

Village plan committee may hire professional-- question up to CV groups

Formation of a Carmel Valley Village master plan was tossed into the laps of Valley civic organizations last week.

A committee of representatives from the groups, meeting with Monterey County Planning Director Ed DeMars at Tularcitos School, decided to ask their memberships about the advisability of hiring a professional planning consultant to draw up the plan.

Several representatives had asked DeMars if he thought it necessary to hire a consultant to formulate a plan for the Valley's major shopping core.

DeMars replied that he "wouldn't recommend going ahead without a consultant."

Chairman Paul Porter said the group would meet again "near the end of the month."

At the Thursday afternoon gathering, representatives were present from the Commercial Property Owners Association (CPOA), Chamber of Commerce, Community Center board of directors, Carmel Valley Property Owners Association (CVPOA) and other groups. There were 13 present in all.

Though the Village area is now protected by building design control through the county, CPOA Pres. Louis Gardner said there was a definite need for some standard to base design control upon.

DeMars agreed.

Quality and quantity standards must be determined, he said, before precise zoning--or rezoning--can be considered.

It was at this point that DeMars noted:

"If you're going to get a consultant, he should get in on the ground floor."

He mentioned James Campbell as one professional planner who has had previous experience in the Valley. (Campbell drew up one set of planlines for the controversial four-lane widening of Carmel Valley Road.)

The expense of hiring a consultant could be borne by private citizens, DeMars added in answer to a question.

When the committee meets again late this month, the matter of forming a steering committee to get to work on the master plan will be considered.

"The major nucleus of the committee and the basic force should come from people who own the property (commercial property in question) in cooperation with residential interests," said Jack Uzzell, owner of Carmel Valley Garage.

The result, he said, should be a plan acceptable to both parties.

DeMars said the plan should take into account a Village based on economic needs as well as esthetic.

Morden Buck, a member of the Upper Valley Advisory Committee to the Monterey County Planning Commission, said Valley citizens should take a "sympathetic view" of the Village plan problem, because the success of commercial ventures in the Valley partially determines the value of residential property and standard of living.

Gardner added that he felt it was obvious that the owners of commercial property have a primary interest in developing the plan.

"If you ignore that," he said, "you're going to get into trouble."

Rex White, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said the Chamber was "pleased" with the County planning staff survey which determined the need for a plan.

Uzzell suggested the representatives try to collect some examples of what has been done in similar instances elsewhere to present to the steering committee when it is formed.

CVPOA board checks with 'Robert's Rules' --finally goes ahead

It took a review of "Robert's Rules of Order"--and then a rejection of it--to choose a chairman for last week's meeting of the board of directors of Carmel Valley Property Owners Association.

With Pres. St. E. P. (Step) Tyner and Vice Pres. Don Roberts both absent, the board pondered naming Sec. J. D. Harms to the post.

Harms, however, declined, reminding them that if he accepted, they would have to name a temporary secretary to replace him.

Rather than go through the process twice, directors held an impromptu election, naming Col. Anders Larsen (USA, ret.), a director with long-time experience in the association.

'Oklahoma' tickets now at White Oaks

Tickets are on sale for "Oklahoma," White Oaks Theatre's first production of the 1965 summer season, manager Ron Mitchell said this week.

"It's going to be a big year," Mitchell noted, adding that a few season tickets are still available too.

"Oklahoma" opens June 24 and will run through July 18, to be followed by "Brigadoon."

Tickets may be reserved by phone to the White Oaks box office, 659-2248.

All productions this season will be at 8:30 p.m. Thursdays through Sundays.

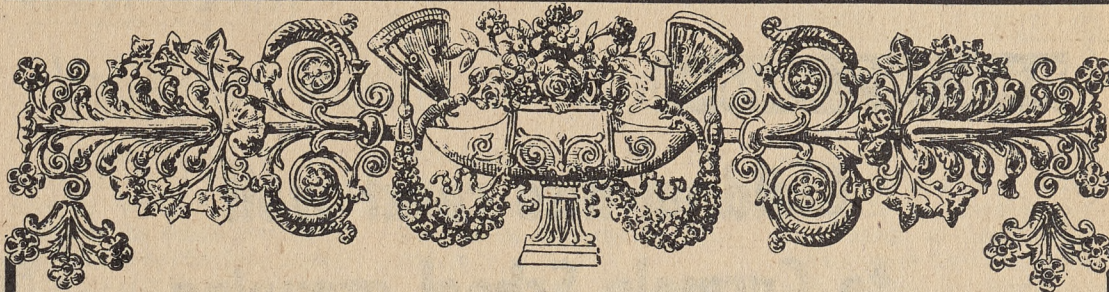

Varied summers for CV professors

Five Carmel Valley residents, all faculty members at Monterey Peninsula College, have summers of study, research and teaching ahead of them, the college said this week.

Stephen James, who will take courses at the University of California at Berkeley, will also continue as MPC's coordinator of technician-vocation education and work on the college building program.

Marshall Chatwin is among seven MPC instructors with grants for summer study and research throughout the nation.

Three more Valleyites will continue their regular assignments in the MPC summer session June 21-July 31. They are Richard Frazer, Owen Patrick and Dr. Joseph Blacow.

Children also react well to Carmelo School grouping

New kinds of "grouping" have been used at Carmelo School all this year, and there is no mistaking the enthusiasm which teachers there feel for the change in teaching methods. Recently this column reported in some detail their unanimous expressions of approval.

In some subjects, children are being grouped according to ability level rather than age. The teachers' consensus was clear: the children seem to them to be learning far more than in previous years, and they seem to relish the process.

A few days ago we visited the school again, this time during the lunch hour. Having obtained permission to go upon the playground, we approached the nearest group of children and asked them to tell us about their school.

"What for?" demanded one bright-looking young lady.

"For the Outlook." That appeared to be the right answer, for almost immediately we had eight eager, chattering youngsters in tow. All of us entered one of the classrooms and sat around one of the large tables which are a pleasant feature of today's elementary schools. All of the youngsters were third or fourth graders; all had attended Carmelo the previous year, they said in answer to our initial questions.

"Now, would you compare your school this year with last year?"

There was a puzzled silence. We were determined to keep from slanting the questions, lest the answers we elicited be equally slanted.

"Is there any difference in your school this year, compared to last year?" we persisted. "Is there EVER?" -- "A LOT different!" -- "Yes!" they replied.

How is it different this year?

"You go from room to room. You don't stay in one place."

"If you're smarter than some others, you can go to another room."

"It is very much harder and we have longer classes."

"And besides, you do much more WORK."

Oh, we said, so it's much harder. How do you feel about that?

"It's funner!" was the first answer.

"You feel bigger," said another proudly.

"You feel smarter," chorused another.

"You feel like a teen-ager," concluded one young lady.

This brought delighted giggles all the way around. We asked the last commentator, "How old are you?"

"Nine," she replied triumphantly.

By Betty Branch

We let the conversation percolate for awhile. The formal behavior was vanishing rapidly and as the descriptions of their daily activities and personal reactions grew more lively we thought, as we often do, that teachers are indeed a remarkable breed.

We wound up the interview by asking the $64 questions.

"From what most of you have said, it sounds as if you like school this year better than last year. How many of you would vote that way?"

Eight hands shot up. How many would vote for last year? Not one.

"Last year was not as interesting. You had to stay at the same level," they concluded scornfully.

One of the teachers had entered the room a few moments previously and now asked if we would like to talk with some children from an older age group.

We thanked the third and fourth graders and left them, rounding up a half a dozen others, mostly larger.

Once seated around the table, we asked in the same general manner if school this year seemed in any way different from last.

"It is much more exciting this year. You don't stay in

We finally get morgue

By Charles Anderson

Every once in a while, somebody on our news staff complains that we don't have a big enough reference library.

"Here's the dictionary," we usually answer. "That should spell you for a while."

This would happen every week or so --up until last week, that is. Now we have a pretty healthy start on a library.

It came as a present to us from our staff of a year ago--the students who publish the Foothill Sentinel at Foothill College in Los Altos Hills.

Included are nine paperback books, from the basic works--an almanac and an atlas--to the most curious of them all, the "Guinness Book of World Records."

CARMEL VALLEY OUTLOOK

Open the Guinness book to Page 16 and you find that the longest mustache in the world is 102 inches and belongs to some guy in India.

On Page 43 is the shattering news that the slowest-flowering plant in the world is the Puya raimondii of Bolivia. "The panicle emerges in about the herb's 150th year of life."

"Then it dies." What a life.

On 303 pages are several thousand entries in the same vein. It's quite a book.

And we thought our college classmates had forgotten us.

Editor's mailbox

The mail brings the strangest things sometimes--and at other times the most welcome objects.

A few days back we received a press release which we are still trying to decipher. It was from the Monterey County public health laboratory and we think it concerned some kind of change in their testing procedures.

It was entitled "Change in Serological Testing in the Public Health Laboratory and the use of the Fluorescent Treponemal Antibody (FTA) Test."

Whew!

A five-inch square box which came several days later, however, was very welcome. It contained a film developing tank which we had sent back to the factory for repair.

And we had no spare.

Now we have to figure out how to send this old typewriter we're using at the moment back to the factory for repairs --and get along without a spare.

WHY DO YOU ASK?

by Garzas Rhodes

Q. Will you please spell out the real meaning of the term, "panhandle lot?"

A. A panhandle lot is the type of lot where one is put on the pan when any attempt is made to handle one. It seems to me you should know this.

Q. Please explain the purpose of a Chamber of Commerce. Also explain why Carmel Valley has one.

A. The Chamber of Commerce is nationally recognized as being the nucleus of our entire economic structure. Carmel Valley has a Chamber of Commerce for the same reason that practically all cities and communities have one, namely: it has been proven impossible to either encourage or fight progress on an empty stomach.

Q. Do you think?

A. Shall we go on to the next question, please?

Q. Is there any real difference between the Carmel Valley youth of today and the youth of a generation or more ago?

A. Yes; they are younger.

Q. Why should there be such a furor over the question of additional roads in Carmel Valley?

A. Because Carmel Valley is going places. We are not certain just where, but obviously a conducted tour.

Stationery? Wedding Announcements? Cards --personal or business? Whatever your printing needs, the Outlook is prepared to fill them. Stop by our office at the entrance to Carmel Valley Village for prompt and imaginative service --common sense prices, too.

Q. What is a panhandle lot?

A. There always has to be a smart alec around.

Q. What has contributed most to Valley's rapid growth in population?

A. Men, women and children. You know what Valley we mean, I hope.

Q. Would this be in line with the much heralded "population explosion" problem?

A. I am not familiar with explosives.

Q. Would you say that the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association has provided adequate representation for the Valley?

A. The Valley does not require any representation. The property owners presemably do. The association has provided representation for the property owners in like proportion to the representation provided the association by the property owners. It's that simple.

Q. Do you feel that Carmel Valley would benefit materially by incorporating?

A. Let's try co-operating first. That should provide an adequate yardstick.

Q. What particular agency do you feel is best qualified to engineer Carmel Valley's density formula?

A. The Space Agency.

Q. Is there any evidence of a teenage delinquency problem presently active in the Valley?

A. The term "delinquency" is no longer restricted to any specific age bracket.

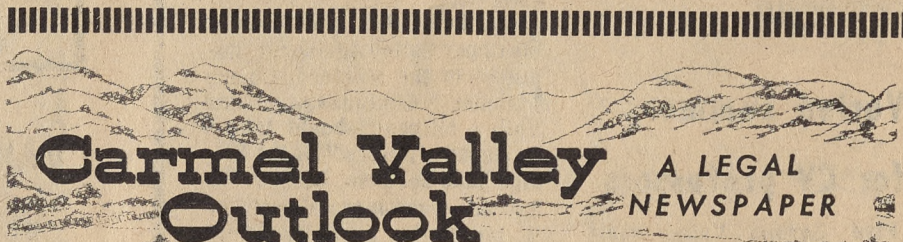

Q. Just what is meant by a "panhandle lot?"

A. I see my time is now up. Thank you.

Prof. Toro misses Talbott's other flags

Recently, Prof. Toro commented in his column in a nearby daily paper on business establishments that regularly flew flags and mentioned Talbott Ties in the Valley Center.

What he neglected to mention was that in addition to the American flag the Talbotts fly flags honoring the countries from which they get their fabrics.

CHARLES D. ANDERSON, MARIANN FLYNN

Ceremony in Cupertino

Charles D. Anderson to marry Mariann Flynn next month

CUPERTINO -- Charles D. Anderson of Robles Del Rio will marry Mariann Flynn of this city next month, it was announced this week by Miss Flynn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Flynn.

Charles, co-editor of the Outlook and former reporter and sports editor of the Cupertino Courier, attended Foothill College of Los Altos Hills before moving to Carmel Valley.

Foothill was where he met Miss Flynn, who is enrolled there at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Flynn chose the occasion of a champagne party at their home to announce the news.

Charles' parents are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth A. Anderson of San Jose.

The couple will wed at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Cupertino.

aid teams for the past three years for emergency service during the four days of sports car racing at Laguna Seca.

Two other first aid instructors, Arthur T. Berquist of Big Sur and Merle Murphy of Carmel, will also receive the award.

The public is invited to attend this meeting, following which tea will be served.

F. Douglas Tellwright, blood program chairman, will speak on the regulations and procedures of the blood program.

In addition to his work with the Red Cross, Tellwright is active in many civic and church affairs. He is a member of the board of directors of White Oaks Theatre and is on the board of Carmel Valley Manor.

Fireman's Ball attracts 400 here—10 win donated prizes

An estimated crowd of 400 attended the 17th annual Fireman's Ball June 5 at Rancho Del Monte Country Club.

Guests enjoyed dancing to the music of the Melody Men both indoors and on the patio. A large group remained for the breakfast served by the club.

Winners of door prizes donated by merchants and the Ladies Auxilairy were John Koonz, R. Alkinson, Ventura

Perez, Mrs. Tony Steliga, Don Brill, Connie Ortiz, Ken Van Hagen, Mrs. Shirley Clark, Roger Scherman and Paul Artellan.

Card party slated June 23

The next card party sponsored by the women of St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church will be held at the home of Mrs. Don Quinto in Rancho Canada, on June 23 at 12:30.

Mrs. Ned Sinclair and Mrs. Roy Larson will act as co-hostesses. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Gordon Brown at 659-4079.

PANCAKE HOUSE TO OPEN

Carmel Valley's newest business, scheduled to open next week, will be The Pancake House, nearing readiness in the Valley Hills Shopping Center.

Owner-operator is Joe Zoellin, a young local man. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Zoellin of Garzas Road; his wife, Martha, is the daughter of A. W. Taaffe, owner of Valley Hills Shopping Center.

A graduate of Carmel High School, Zoellin worked for Sambo's Pancake House in Carmel for the past two years. Before that, he served two years in the Army, including a year in Greenland where he became an army cook.

He and his wife reside in Carmel. The Valley Pancake House, Zoellin pointed out, will be the only independent pancake restaurant on the Monterey Peninsula. He and his father-in-law have been completing the interior of the new restaurant, which is Early-American design.

Hours will be from 6 a.m.-5 p.m. every day but Thursday.

Red Cross to train volunteers

A training course for Red Cross volunteers will be conducted at chapter headquarters, Carmel-by-the-Sea, Monday and Tuesday for anyone interested in active volunteer service.

Anyone interested in attending is requested to call the Red Cross headquarters in Carmel on eighth and Dolores, 624-6291 or 624-6455.

Carmelo School tries out student grouping one room," one young lady immediately obliged.

"I liked it better last year," objected a brown-eyed blonde boy with a resolute scowl.

This brought laughter from everyone else at the table.

"He had some bad luck at the end of last year," the first young lady remarked. We asked what had happened.

"When they gave the tests, he passed," she said with a droll expression. The children shrieked with laughter. We expressed understandable mystification.

"He didn't want to leave Miss -----" another girl explained, naming one of the pretty young teachers.

The lad under discussion resolutely maintained his scowl, persisting, "I liked it better last year."

The only other boy at the table backed him up. "Last year was better. Not so much walking around."

All four young ladies disagreed.

"The new way prepares children for the next school," said our droll miss in a superior tone. At the next school, you will just naturally be moving from room to room and you might as well get used to it. The new way gets younger kids into the feeling of grouping."

We asked-a little suspiciously, we must admit-whether her teachers told her that.

"It was certainly my own idea," said the young lady haughtily.

Another miss remarked that with the new grouping, "Teach-have more time to help different kids that need help. Some people don't know things that other people do."

Said another, "This year is more interesting because it is not the same all day."

"Last year you had only one teacher to offer his bit of knowledge," said our droll young lady, who seemed determined to make a strong impression. "This year you get the whole of knowledge," she concluded, with a sweeping gesture.

We asked slyly what happened if teachers' "bits of knowledge" differed from each other, didn't quite agree.

"That I must admit is sometimes confusing," she conceded. "Then, we argue."

The two young men, who were remaining rather pointedly silent, were next asked to be more detailed about their objections. It was gently suggested that the young ladies take their turn at silence.

"When you go from class to class, it takes a long time to get settled. Lots of people fool around...You don't have time to get your papers collected before they are saying this is their seat now," said the boys.

The discussion became somewhat personal, and threatened to get out of hand, so (once again thinking to ourselves that teachers are among the most remarkable of humans) we tied things together by asking for the vote.

The four young ladies firmly registered their preference for this year's grouping system. The two young men formally recorded their dissent.

Then the final question: Aside from how well you like it this year, how many feel that you are learning more?

To our surprise, all six children raised their hands without hesitation. We only wish that all adults could make judgments with as much objectivity as those two young men!

We asked each youngster how to reach his parents in order that we might wind up investigations by seeking opinions from this source as well.

But we're running out of space and will have to leave their reactions until next week...

Bill Mallek, principal of Tularcitos School, acted in another capacity last week. As president of the Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club, he presented dictionaries from them to four deserving sixth grade students. It has been a practice for many years for the club to award a dictionary to the boy and the girl who have achieved the highest scholastic rating, one to the person practicing the best citizenship, and one to the boy or girl who has maintained the most superior standard of effort.

This year's awards were made at school assembly of the third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades. Louis Broadhead and Sharon Groves were named as the boy and girl with the highest scholastic record. Jean Whiteman received the good citizenship award and Linda Smith had the honor of maintaining the highest standard of effort over the year.

UNDER THE OAKS AND AMONG THE CACTI

By MILDRED HATTAN

Beginning an adventure on the high seas, (destination, the Hawaiian Islands) are Mr. and Mrs. William T. Barnes who, plan to set sail later this month on their 36-foot ketch, "Princess."

Mary and Bill, whose home at 89 Ford Road is for sale have planned this voyage for a long time and plan to "go where we feel for as long as we feel like sailing."

The Princess is currently in Santa Cruz getting a complete overhaul. Their sea-going home was purchased from Howard P. Hall of Newport Beach. The transaction involved a rigid personal interview to assure the Hal's that the Princess was being placed with a proper family.

Lahaina on Maui was a port enjoyed so much by the former owners that the Barneses are planning to tie the Princess there again for a lengthy stay.

A course in celestial navigation was recently completed by the Valley sailors; however, neither is a novice on board ship.

Mary can swap sea stories with the best of them about her days as a member of a crew aboard a Norwegian tanker. From its base in London, she sailed the Baltic to Arabia and following the second voyage to the Caribbean returned home with the ship and then flew to San Francisco to become Mrs. Barnes!

Bill, vice commodore of the Monterey Yacht Club, has been so busy lately gaining nautical experience that he has had little time to attend to details for the trip. He served as a crew member aboard the 47-foot brigantine, "Gloria Maris," which represented Monterey in the Master Mariners Regatta last month on San Francisco Bay.

Although it finished 26th, it was the only square rigged to overcome the perils of the currents and finish at all.

Last Thursday he crewed again for the "Gloria Maris," which was sailed to San Pedro where its current owner, southern California publisher Marshal Beauchamp, is placing it once again on the market.

Accompanying Bill on both trips was the member of the crew who will accompany them to the Islands, Allan H. (Pat) Patterson of Carmel.

Other members of the crew include the Barnes sons, Michael, 4, and Christopher, 2 1/2. The children gained their sea legs on a 25-foot Pacific clipper "Frisco Flyer," on which they took numerous family excursions up and down the California coast.

Handsome carving on the bow of the Princess are part of the design distinctive of L. Francis Herreshoff, whose father, Nathaniel Herreshoff, was the late dean of American naval architects.

If in the near future you spot the giant spinnaker of the Princess on the horizon you may be certain that nestled in that carved bow will be the ship's mascot — and member of the family Mary credits as its best sailor — a Siamese cat whose name, Phichai, means "triumph."

While the Barneses are at Lahaina, they may have an opportunity to visit with former Valleyites, the David Rutty Jr. family. David has recently opened Lahaina's newest nightclub, called "Kanaka Pete's."

Design of the club includes a balcony which was added at the request of the Maui Historical Commission, which is attempting to recreate an aura for Lahaina as it was during the old whaling days.

Or if their travels should take them to the Kona Coast another former Valleyite, Barbara Viljoen, will undoubtedly enjoy an exchange of news from home. Barbara has recently been hired as the "girl Friday" for the new Pacific Express Motel.

Carmel Valley racing pigeons arrived home with more honors this week following their release more than 500 miles away in Rogerson, Idaho.

Owner of the first bird to win in competition was John Scott, whose bird flew 831.526 yards per minute. Second place was won by Maurice Hannsens of

CARMEL VALLEY OUTLOOK

'Healthy atmosphere—here in Valley'

By AGNES GOOCH

"I found a healthy atmosphere, an atmosphere not easily found in theatre, and it's right here in Carmel Valley."

These were the parting words of Tracy Carr as she ran into the theatre for an 11 o'clock rehearsal of "Oklahoma."

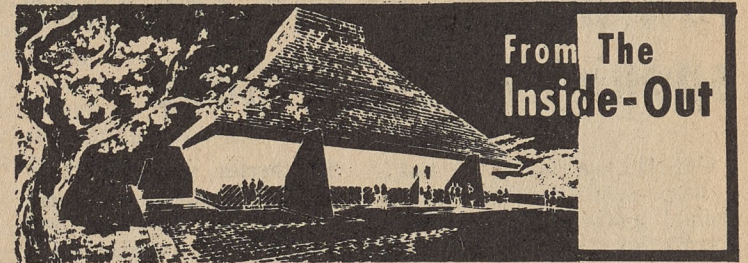

Miss Carr, a native of Galveston, Texas, came to White Oaks last summer when she was contracted for the lead role of Polly in "The Boy Friend." Like several other performers of last summer, she remained for the winter season during which she was seen as Helena in "Look Back In Anger," Mrs. Ralston in "Mousetrap," and Piglet in "Winnie-the-Pooh."

Tracy, a versatile performer who can sing, act and dance, graduated from Sam Houston State College and taught school for one year before she decided to commit herself fully to theatre.

"I want to study in Vienna," says Tracy, whose dramatic soprano voice was featured in Nancy Ness Bowman's Opera Workshop this past winter, "appear on the Metropolitan Opera Stage and then come back to White Oaks and teach voice and piano."

In the next few months we look forward to seeing a great deal of Tracy Carr on the White Oaks stage. She will be playing the lead role of Fiona in "Brigadoon" and Bianca in the opera being presented the final week of the season.

The personality, looks and voice of Tracy Carr assure her a most promising career, a career we shall be following with much interest.

Children's Theatre

Full house, scene-stealing spaniel mark windup

CARMEL--A full house and a stage-stealing tail-wagging spaniel marked the windup of Marcia Hovic's season with the Community Theater of the Monterey Peninsula last week.

Miss Hovic is directress of the Children's Theater Division of the Community Theater.

Garcia paintings in Aptos show

APTOS -- Danny Garcia, owner-artist of the Carmel Museum of Modern Art, is exhibiting paintings in the Conominium Beach Homes at Rio Del Mar near here.

Color and drama of sailboats, fishing and activity of the waterfront on Monterey Bay have provided Garcia with a source of inspiration for his works.

Hannah wins award

WALNUT CREEK--Jay Hannah of Carmel Art Association won an award in the mixed media class of the 10th annual Walnut Creek Art Show.

The theater, which has played to delighted audiences in nearly every school in the area, closed the season with a double bill at Golden Bough Circle Theater in Carmel:

"River Treasure," an original Hovic play written for the particular talents of her younger class.

"A Scoundrel Named Scapan," as timely and hilarious a satire today as it was to the sophisticates of France's Sun King.

Interest in the theatrical arts among young people is how Miss Hovic likes to explain the purpose of the Children's Theater.

The Community Theater will open July 1 with an adult dramatic program at Golden Bough Circle, now that the children's season is finished.

Valleyite graduates

SALINAS--Valleyite Muriel E. Raymond will be among 240 graduates receiving diplomas from Hartnell College here tonight.

Commencement exercises begin at 8 p.m. in the library.

PUPPY WINS IN PASADENA, DEL MONTE SHOWS

PASADENA--A Carmel Valley standard poodle named De Russey Necromancer scored best of variety in the Pasadena Kennel Club Show here last week.

The poodle, bred and owned by Jacklyn Boyd, 71 Panetta Rd., was the same dog who took two first places in the Del Monte Kennel Club Show several weeks ago at Pebble Beach.

De Russey came in best of variety and best in non-sporting group at Pebble Beach. (Photo by Barrett Associates)

Valleyite Warren Roberts celebrates non-commercialized Christmas in Peru

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the next installment in a series of letters from Peace Corps Volunteer Warren Roberts to his parents, Valleyites Mr. and Mrs. Don Roberts. This one was written just prior to Christmas last year. Warren's parents leave this week for a visit in the Peruvian community where he is serving.)

'Twas the night before Christmas and all through Huaraz not a creature was stirring, not even a Guinea pig. This is probably the quietest Christmas you could find anywhere that knows anything about the commercial advantages of the birthday of Santa Claus—or was is somebody else?

It's really a relief, though; no crowds, no shopping, no crud that glitters nor any of the lousy arrangements of carols that the shopper is subjected to in the States. It's all very peaceful and, if peace is homage to God, reverent, too.

Tonight there will be special Mass said in the churches—the Mass of the rooster (la misa del gallo).

Tomorrow there will be family reunions and some fiestas. Some of the middle class families exchange gifts, but in general the tradition of gift-giving is done on the Day of the Kings (el Dia de los Reyes), Jan. 6.

Lima, the capital, has, I've heard, fallen under the curse of the commercial Christmas, but Huaraz still holds to the old tradition.

Tomorrow there will also be special Mass for those who feel so moved to participate. I am going to a Kermesse which is being held for the benefit of the parochial high school for girls. There will be typical criollo and serrano food (and that doesn't mean turkey, cranberry sauce or persimmon pudding) and dancing to the music of a professional band.

However, being a true gringo,

I really miss the music of the season. Imagine a Christmas without hearing or singing carols or the Messiah or listening to Bach cantatas? I also miss not going to the Nightengale Ranch, the cousins, friends, aunts, uncles, Granny, the pinata, hikes over the hills, the dinner and, admittedly, the gift opening, and most important—you folks.

And the Christmas tree! There seems to be almost no special decoration for this time of year. Two stores in town have set up trees with lights. It's just as well that this custom doesn't catch on—there are few enough trees in the sierra as it is.

(The trees in the stores are, incidentally, our own Monterey Cypress.)

Please thank Beulah Powers for reminding you to remind me to keep a journal. Until a few weeks ago my journal consisted only of the letters home. After beginning, I realized how much I'd been missing and the value that is has for reflection. Also, about two months ago I began keeping track of all that is spent and received. To both of these projects I've been faithful; every night the entries are made.

One of the PCV's here in Huaraz went to Lima for Christmas and left me his transoceanic shortwave radio. This has allowed me to hear some good music and the world and Stateside news. Believe me, it's great!

Now I wish that I had one.

Speaking of news, you mentioned flying over the hills behind Santa Barbara and seeing the sad results of a fire. Did that happen since my leaving? News from California is very rare up here. So far it has been the Berkeley riots (very skimpy coverage) and a little of the election results.

While listening to Fred Smithson's radio, I happened to hear that the Dead Sea Scrolls will be on exhibition in the City sometime soon so you'll probably want to see them. They're making a special trip from Trans-Jordan.

Also, I was pleasantly surprised to hear Marie Gibson singing a solo in some Christmas music by Respighi—she sure has a good voice. This brought back memories of the Bach Festival, as you can imagine.

I hope to go to Lima sometime before the Day of the Kings. I still have the package that the Arboledas sent for their relatives. There are also some things to get and people to see.

Also, the grapevine says that the surface freight is in Calao being processed. Speaking of freight, the pressure cooker was in the air freight, thank goodness.

You asked for more information on my standard of living. My bed is an Army cot and I'm using the sleeping bag as well as the Peace Corps sheets and blankets because of the cold.

My kitchen is one corner of the room; the stove is a Primus (Swedish, primed with rum and run on kerosene). My expenses so far have been between $25-30 per month. This, of course, means no rent and very little food such as meat, milk and eggs which are pretty hard to get.

Eggs cost about 4 cents, avocados 5 cents, oranges 3 cents, papaya 16 cents, bananas 2 cents, can of tuna 16 cents, a restaurant meal 60 cents-$1, 1 qt. cottonseed oil 36 cents, soft drinks 10 cents, movies 25 cents, pineapple 20 cents, haircut 25 cents, Jell-o 12 cents, taxi for one mile 8 cents.

Movies are about the only entertainment and we do get some good ones. "Tom Jones," for example, was wonderful; see it if you can.

The food is very different from the food in Mexico, the only similarity being the importance of corn, tamales (rare) and chili pepper.

I hope that you had a happy Christmas and a pleasant New Year's Day. I've been thinking of you, especially in this season.

Another road delay

Supervisors to vote on road June 28?

posing the four-lane plans. Petitions which were to be presented Monday will now be held for the June 28 hearing, according to spokesman Jack Uzzell.

Uzzell has led the group against widening which was formed immediately following the first deferral two months ago.

Another group, a bit later in getting organized, is active in the Lower Valley area west of Dorris Drive circulating its own petitions. They ask the board to rescind already established four-lane planlines from a point just east of Carmel Junior High School to Dorris Drive.

Beverly Stover, who told supervisors of the Lower Valley movement, said he agreed "substantially" with sentiments expressed in the Upper Valley petitions, "as far as it goes."

However, he added, if the Upper Valley is "granted immunity" to four-lane possibilities, the Lower Valley is entitled to have the same.

"We are just as interested in retaining scenery," he noted. Uzzell told the board his group was disappointed in another delay.

"We can get a lot more signatures with more time," he said, "but we feel we have enough to support our cause."

The Upper Valley petitions ask the board to "abandon" consideration of four lanes and give priority to a proposed route at Canada de la Segunda, a skyline scenic route from Segunda to Laureles Grade and a route over the mountains from Farm Center to Canyon del Rey.

In addition, the petitions request supervisors to "recognize as a matter of policy that the Valley is a scenic area which demands protection and whose residents do not want arterial road access; and that entirely adequate long-range access can be provided by the foregoing proposals."

Robert Dufton, a member of the Upper Valley group, asked the board to also be aware of "moral and ethical" considerations. In this case, the planlines represent "a type of a taking without compensation," he said.

The June 28 hearing will include discussion of road plans from near the junior high school to the Village, Hudson said.

Mrs. Purple thanks scouts

The widow of the late Dr. S. Maus Purple, Valley mineral and archeology expert, this week expressed thanks to Cub Scout Pack 76 for its reception of a speech which he delivered to them shortly before his death.

"The morning that Mr. Purple spent with the boys and faithful den mothers was a very happy time for him," she wrote in an open letter to the pack.

"I have never known him to be more surprised and pleased than when those fine gentlemanly boys called with their gifts.

"He loved young people, especially boys, and was intensely interested in their 'growing up potentials.'

"Any plans we make, as we did for our 60th wedding anniversary, are so often not God's will, but we accept his wisdom and his blessing that our loved one slipped away suddenly (as he would have wished it)."

Reading—cornerstone of learning in all areas, committee declares

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the text of a report on the reading curriculum in Carmel schools, as prepared by a subcommittee of citizens. It was presented to the board of education of Carmel Unified School District, along with a minority subcommittee report which was too long to publish. Reports on other subject areas will be published as they are presented in this series.)

READING SUBCOMMITTEE REPORT

The Citizen's Committee on Reading wishes to express appreciation to the school board and administration for the edifying and enjoyable opportunity to inspect and study the methods and techniques of reading instruction in the district.

Teachers and principals gave freely and graciously of their time to explain programs, to conduct special demonstrations and to answer innumerable questions about procedures. Their enthusiasm and dedication were heartening.

On the whole we were appreciative of the fact that we saw freedom and flexibility in the use of methods in the teaching of reading, each teacher having the opportunity to use approaches and materials in which she felt most comfortable.

The following basic beliefs were confirmed by numerous hours of classroom observation, conferences with teachers and principals, inspection of materials and methods used and finally long hours of stimulating and vigorous committee discussion.

A. That reading K through 12 is the cornerstone of learning in all subject areas. We believe that not enough attention has been given to comprehension and reading skills in the content areas of mathematics, history and geography.

B. That the nature of the individual learner is unique and every effort should be made to encourage him to progress as far and as fast as his individual learning rate and capacity allows.

C. That beyond the skills themselves the desire to read should be fostered at all levels and in all subject areas, encouraging breadth of interest and eagerness for knowledge.

The Committee on Reading wishes to make the following recommendations in five general categories affecting students in grades Kindergarten through 12.

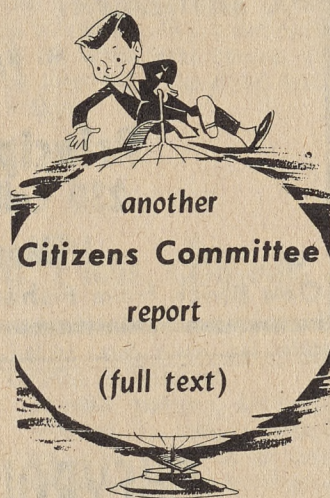

PROCEDURES

That a written evaluation of a student's progress in reading be maintained to effect continuity in his reading development, and that each teacher be expected to read and use the cumulative folder.

That a student with emotional problems affecting his reading development and learning be identified and provided with appropriate help.

That a variety of reading methods be used at all grade levels to meet the children's needs.

That greater emphasis be given to the planning of experimental reading programs, using a specialist in that method. Such programs should be set up so that their usefulness may be evaluated by testing as well as by teacher judgment.

That a continuous program of vocabulary development be strengthened at all grade levels.

That careful consideration be given in hiring teachers, since we recognize that capable teachers are the very foundation of a successful reading program.

IN-SERVICE TRAINING

That the program of incentive pay or credit workshops in various aspects of reading instruction be continued and enlarged. Particular workshops should be those selected by the needs or requests of teachers as well as those selected by the administration to introduce new methods or techniques. A number of such workshops should be available during school hours.

That greater emphasis be placed upon freeing teachers for visitation in other school districts and also in other schools within this district. Each teacher should be given a specified amount of time for such visitation and provision should be made for travel budgets and teacher substitutions.

That the district make better use of results obtained in experimental reading programs within the district by means of teacher visitations and disseminated written evaluations.

That a library of professional books, journals and materials be developed and made available to all teachers.

TEACHER AIDES

That teacher aides be employed to free teachers from time-consuming tasks and to provide for more communication and planning among teachers themselves.

That a corps of parents and community volunteers be organized upon which teachers may call for assistance as their needs require.

COMMUNICATION

That communication between teacher-teacher, teacher-parent and teacher-student should be increased. With ungraded classes particular emphasis should be placed upon coordination among teachers, not only in the same area, i.e. reading alone, but also in related areas, i.e. reading and English.

That parent-teacher conferences be more meaningful, using guide sheets and test results. We urge that folders of students' work be sent home periodically to parents, and that notice be given when weaknesses develop.

That conferences between teacher and student be held at regular intervals to estimate the quality and quantity of work than can be reasonably expected of the student and to advise the student of his progress and ways to strengthen his weaknesses.

That provision be made for teachers to receive a student's report card so that where desirable a written evaluation can be made.

That reading lists be distributed to parents at the beginning of the school year, and that summer reading lists accompany report cards in June.

It would take lots of memory-searching for our print shop staff to list everything we have printed for Valley businesses, just-plain-folks and out-of-town companies.

And that many people can't be wrong. Right?

Why not give us a chance to work for you? We have produced jobs as small as wallet-size business cards and as large as the 20-, 24- or 28-page Outlook you read every week.

And every job receives the same careful workmanship of our thorough experienced staff. What more could you ask—except low prices?

And we have those, too!

Fran Raymond's calendar jives with school's

School is out Thursday and Fran Raymond begins her vacation too! Fran, whose official title is school secretary at Tularcitos School, fulfills other rolls of substitute nurse, temporary mother, messenger, so other of hurt feelings and general "Girl Friday."

Eleven years ago, when her children were attending Tularcitos School, Fran started working in the office a few hours a day, "just to use up time and have something to do."

As more people moved to the Valley and the school enrollment increased, so did the work and she found that she left later and later each day. Finally, the half-time job became full-time, but Fran enjoys the children so much that each extra hour meant more fun.

The Raymond's move to Carmel Valley was just a temporary one 19 years ago when they sold their house in Carmel and could not find a place in town to rent. They extended their house-search way out the Valley, and Irene Baldwin found them a cottage in Robles Del Rio.

Fran, Paul and their children, Jeffery, Neil and Muriel, moved there until they could return to Carmel. At this time Rosie's Cracker Barrel was the only store and also housed the Post Office, and there were no houses on the other hills at all!

What had started as a temporary move became permanent after they bought property on the Meadow in Robles and built their present home.

When Fran started at Tularcitos, Wayne Greenfield was principal and when he left she became Bill Mallek's "right arm," to quote him.

During a half-hour visit in the office, recently, Fran called three parents to report that children had forgotten lunches and called two teachers to report that forgotten lunches had been delivered by parents.

Then, since it was a day when the school nurse was not in attendance, a bloody nose was treated, a skinned knee bandaged and a bumped elbow examined and the owner comforted.

Lost lunch money was turned in by one child and a tearful second child reunited with his missing 35 cents. Inbetween all these were parent phone calls, teacher requests and announcements to be run off, comprising but a portion of the duties this terrific gal performs!

What does she do when she goes home?

Her special interest is music, she spends many hours playing the piano and at times has played both the violin and the bass fiddle.

Parents who attended the school Christmas music program were surprised to see Fran in still another role. At music director Gene Perrine's request, she played the cello in the ensemble, and she had never played it before she was asked to participate in the program.

At this point of the year, however, Fran, just like all the kids, is ready for vacation.

She and Paul hope to travel through Canada and visit friends in Vancouver, her birthplace, providing he can get concurrent vacation time.

Then, in September, when the children go back to school, so does Fran Raymond!

Bucket seats? On the Scout?

There are probably thousands of farmers, construction men and store owners who like the SCOUT because it's a tough, powerful utility vehicle that's easy on gas and goes anywhere.

But we hear from more and more people who bought a SCOUT for pure fun. Outdoor people... suburbanites... hunters and fishermen who don't want to stop going just because they've run out of road.

The sporty bucket seats (and the full width removable back seat) are for them.

And if you think that's getting too fancy for a utility vehicle, take a SCOUT on a pleasure cruise. You never had that much fun with a utility vehicle.

Michael Viljoen is a houseguest at the Rancho Road home of the Ben J. Viljoen family while he looks for a place in the Valley to live.

He will be joined shortly by his wife, Pam. The young couple have been making their home near Long Beach.

Cmdr. and Mrs. Eckard, who with their six children resided on Via Contenta until last week when classes at the Naval Postgraduate School were completed have left to make their new headquarters in Maryland.

While calling the Valley "home," the Eckards contributed many hours toward the success of numerous projects, among them, the Community Chapel Nursery School and Little League.

Mrs. Ivan A. Makinster of Lilac Lane served as hostess to the Wednesday morning meeting of the Ballet Mothers. The group, whose offsprings are enrolled in the ballet classes at White Oaks Theatre, hold these informal coffees monthly and are given demonstrations and information to further their understanding of the training program.

This month's discussion, led by Angene Feves, was on choreography. Members also heard of plans for Angene's ballet school which will open July 8 on the second floor of the Cummings building on Del Fino Place.

An announcement was made that among dignitaries who plan to attend the July 3 dedication of the White Oaks Theater will be Meredith "The Music Man" Willson.

Fire Chief A. A. "Chip" Collins and social chairman George Palmer represented the Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department at the meeting of Rural Coast County Fire Departments Tuesday in Salinas.

The local department will host a Coast Counties dinner meeting July 10 at the Trail and Saddle Club grounds. A count of advance reservations indicates a crowd of 300 is expected for the barbecue.

A jewelry fashion show was given last Friday evening by Mrs. Robert Angell at her home on Boronda Road.

Thoroughfare south of river?

CVPOA directors oppose one Area Plan change

Directors of Carmel Valley Property Owners Association (CVPOA) last week went on record as opposing one, approving nine and not commenting on eight changes made by the Monterey County Planning Commission in the Area Plan.

The board voted to draft a letter to the Board of Supervisors urging adoption of the plan with changes as indicated by the directors.

The point with which the CVPOA disagreed would form a major thoroughfare south of Carmel River from Highway 1 to Robinson Canyon.

The board felt that meandering drive which may cross the river at several points would be more fitting in the area.

The points which were not commented upon were not in the Valley and thus not within CVPOA jurisdiction.

In other matters, the board: --Voted to mail a simple "yes or no" ballot on the four-lane Carmel Valley Road question as an opinion poll to all members. It will be accompanied by a cover letter written by Pres. St. E. P. (Step) Tyner.

--Heard director Anders Larsen, president pro tem, report that a copy of the preliminary report on a slope-density formula, prepared by William Spangle Associates, would be mailed to the CVPOA. Larsen said it had been promised by Supervisor Thomson J. Hudson.

--Agreed to participate in formation of a master plan for Carmel Valley Village.

Committee asks for increase in Carmel schools library books ratio be increased from the present approximate ratio of 1:12 to at least 1:30.

That every effort be made to increase the availability of library books and resource or reference materials to the students:

(Library hours for grades 3-12 should include regular class hours; the lunch hour and one hour after school. Grades 9-12 should have access to the library in the evening and on Saturday morning.

(Library hours should include school-year and summer vacations.

(Borrowing privileges for hardcover books should also apply to paperback books.)

That a paperback bookstore be added to the intermediate school.

That the libraries function as a center for learning. There should be comfortable seating and appropriate tables. Reference materials should be close at hand, with areas provided for individual reading and research and for group discussion and research.

That the reference centers be expanded. Books, tapes, records, films, listening posts, film projectors, etc., should be available to students with minimum supervision.

That reading aids for students who wish to increase their speed and comprehension should be available in the library.

That reading lists of required books should be posted in the library and the books on these lists be acquired by the librarian in sufficient number for individual class requirements.

That special funds be made available in K through 4 for purchase of room libraries to include such books as the "Owl Series" and other books as they are published.

That provision be made as soon as possible for building the new library at the high school and for enlarging the libraries at Carmelo School and Captain Cooper School.

That a district librarian be employed to coordinate book purchases, to maintain a district catalog and to locate and provide books upon teacher request.

That a citizens' committee be appointed in the near future to make a thorough study of all libraries in the district, including the new high school library.

The Committee on Reading wishes to make the following recommendations for specific grade levels.

KINDERGARTEN - 4th GRADE

That materials be made available at the instructional materials center for parents of pre-schoolers interested in stimulating their children to read prior to kindergarten.

That a formalized reading program be made available to all kindergarten children ready to read. Appropriate reading readiness material be available to those not ready to read.

That, beginning at kindergarten level, a continuous program of phonics be used including the introduction of short vowels.

That library privileges begin at kindergarten level.

That ungraded programs including kindergarten be encouraged throughout the district so that all students may cross grade lines according to their own level of achievement.

GRADES 5-12

The Committee commends the attack on reading skills and interest in non-college preparatory English classes, the reading requirements in college preparatory subjects in grades 11 and 12, and the addition of the sophisticated college atmosphere in the large group facility.

That all students be included in developmental reading programs with particular emphasis on training to read for subject matter.

That the district continue the highly commendable program of remedial reading which we found outstanding in both method and equipment.

That neither the average nor superior readers be neglected. They should also have access to guidance and equipment to further their abilities in speed and comprehension.

That the reading and homework load should be increased gradually through grades in all subject areas. Reading lists should be available for extended research or incentive reading programs.

That a roving reading specialist be utilized to instruct in content reading, outlining, and note-taking in specialized subjects.

That teachers present at the beginning of each term an outline of recommended study habits.

Man injured in market fall, taken to doctor by ambulance

The Red Cross ambulance operated by members of the Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department was called to the Carmel Valley Market June 3 to transport Leonard Schader of Seaside to a local physician's office for treatment of injuries received in a fall.

Mrs. Eva McDonald of Poppy Road was taken as a medical emergency to Community Hospital by members of the first aid squad. The call was received June 3.

A single car accident occurred June 7 on Carmel Valley Road near Country Club Drive.

First aiders who were called to the scene took Curtis Morrow of Pacific Grove to Community Hospital with possible shoulder injuries.

A medical emergency at the Russel Ranch on E. Carmel Valley Road was answered by the first aid crew June 9.

Mrs. Sigrid Lehti was transported first to a local doctor's office and then moved to the Community Hospital.

LL barbecue slated Sunday

Sunday is the day for Valleyites who want to support Carmel Valley Little League and enjoy a steak barbecue at the same time, according to Sherman LaFave, Little League president.

The league's annual benefit barbecue is scheduled for 1-5 p.m. at the San Clemente Dam Filter Plant in Upper Carmel Valley.

Adults will be charged $2.50, children $1.50.

A previous report that the event would be at the Village Fire Station was in error.

CUSD board meets

CARMEL--Trustees of Carmel Unified School District will receive a report of the Citizens Subcommittee on the district health curriculum tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Carmel High School large group facility.

The report may contain findings and recommendations concerning the recent health hazard controversy surrounding high school and Carmel Junior High School food vending machines.

Schulte Road convalescent hospital proposal draws opposition from some groups and support from others. CVPOA board members voted to ask for planning commission continuance.

The board of Carmel Knolls Property Owners Association gave the project its stamp of approval, while directors of Mid-Valley Property Owners Association turned thumbs down.

A petition with some 40 signatures against the plan was presented at the Mid-Valley meeting.

Noto, however, challenged some names, claiming they were of persons not affected by the project and of near-illiterates.

Whether the site would be safe for a convalescent hospital with close proximity to the river and whether it is "suitable" for the residential character of Schulte Road were main questions raised at the CVPOA session.

John Otter, a member of the board of directors and resident of Schulte Road, charged that the entire site was "subject to inundation."

There exists a "good possibility" that buildings could wash away in the case of high floods, Otter said.

Noto replied that it was "my problem" to protect his patients. He said his conscience would dictate the extent to which he would go to assure the protection.

"I'm not gambling with my land," he noted. Buildings, he explained, will be three-and-a-half feet above ground and patios and retaining walls would help withstand any water.

The project would not degrade the area, Noto claimed, because it is not now strictly residential.

Eve Brown opens showing

The new exhibition opening at the Thunderbird Shop this week will feature the "constructions" of Eve Brown of Robles Del Rio.

Also on the road now are Saddle Mountain Ranch picnic grounds and Riverside Trout Farm, he said.

Marie Frumkin, who with her husband Milton operates Saddle Mountain Ranch, was a vehement supporter of Noto.

She said the project would "upgrade" land values in the area. She noted that several times Schulte Road has been described as "the Seaside of Carmel Valley."

Noto asked for a special board meeting before the planning commission hearing, but directors voted to ask for the commission continuance for further discussion.

Noto warned that a continuance might mean the end of the proposal.

"If there's a delay, that's the sweetest way they can kill it," he declared to the CVPOA board. "A delay is just throwing $5,000 into the air."

Planned features of the hospital would include all private rooms, but with provisions for couples if needed, heavy planting buffers on all sides of the site and preservation of an existing apricot orchard, according to Noto.

To begin with, Noto said, phase one of five phases would be built to house 80 patients and an occupational therapy wing. Ultimately, five one-story wings would spread out from a central two-story administration building, he added.

Bob's Corner

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

BY BOB LAMBERT

HINT OF THE WEEK

Last week I discussed why I picked one appliance over another, and picked Maytag for washers and dryers. This week I will discuss electric ranges. This is a little more difficult as many of the component parts are made by the same companies, so the things I base my selections on are - construction, details of the case, type of porcelain, size of wiring, type of electrical connectors, quality of fixtures, and features.

The size of an oven has little to do with how good a baker it is, but the amount of insulation and type of venting does. Frigidaire and Thermador have always been my favorites for all around good behavior in domestic equipment, but I was never really satisfied with the features so I built my own range adding features that Betty wanted and used. But for all my pains and troubles I might just as well have waited a little longer.

Jenn Air, a company making mostly commercial equipment for the past twenty years, came out with a built in range and oven set for domestic use that has all my features plus quality fixtures, with a big bonus, self-ventilation. Each unit not only has commercial quality but has its own built in fan and duct system which is so superior to anything else on the market it is fantastic. Picture in your mind a built in range that can cook onions, fish, cabbage, etc. without smelling it in the house. Not having to paint greasy walls and ceilings every few years, or cleaning curtains and rugs for the same reason, broiling meats and rotisseries with the door open. All of these without having to give up cupboard space to vent pipes or losing room heating or cooling to large overhead fans. As you can see the cost of these units is amortized over a long period of time, not only with cost but convenience. It gives me a lot of pleasure in being able to recommend these units, which even without the venting feature would stand in the top row.
